

RYAN JOHNSON

Named a "virtuosic tapper" by The Washington Post, Ryan Johnson is a native of Baltimore, MA. He began developing his passion for dance under the guidance of his mother Vanessa inspiring him to pursue dance in the professional world. He has won many awards, such as the DC Metro Dance Award for Outstanding Solo and has performed professionally with Cirque Du Soleil Mosaic, The Washington Ballet, "The Great Gatsby", and a featured soloist at the 2010 DansEncore International Dance Festival. He has spent his last few years touring with the New York Company of STOMP. He and his company Raw Sound Tap believe in the teaching, restoration, and preservation of the history of Tap dance.