

Erica Maurer

Erica received her BFA in Dance from Western Michigan University, and shortly after moved to New York where she performed with a local contemporary company and went on to tour as a lead dancer in The Aluminum Show throughout Spain, Russia, Italy, and Canada. All throughout college and beyond, Erica's storytelling nature flourished with choreography becoming a new language for Erica to share her stories with. Her choreography has been sought out by studios all over the country, and she always enjoys getting to share her movement with new dancers. Over the past 15 years, Erica also grew to love the art of teaching and investing into young dancers. Erica has high expectations and high empathy as a leader, and she prides herself in helping her dancers embark on their own dance journeys - while staying true to themselves and prioritizing their wellbeing. She has had the honor of helping many dancers reach their goals, and continues to do so today. Erica's choreographic style is driven by emotion and storytelling, and fuses the foundations of technique with the freedom to break the rules.
